

Garnering applause Thursday night at a Westwood preview of their new movie, "Romancing the Stone," which opens to the public March 30, were Kathleen Turner, center, who stars as a romance writer who finds herself living out her fantasies in a South American adventure involving Michael Douglas, left, as a reluctant swashbuckler and Danny DeVito, right, as a hapless kidnapper who seems to have wandered in straight out of "Beat the Devil."

margaritas and tacos at Westwood's Acapulco Restaurant. Jackie Bisset intently listened to talk of the grueling location work in the jungles of Mexico.

James Rubeaman/Herald photographer

James Rubeaman/Herald photographer

"I wish I could have played the part 20 years ago," Kirk Douglas said of his son Michael's performance as a jungle fortune-hunter.